Read the passage below and answer questions 31-40.

In the land of Sheba, a mother and her two boys lived there. This family was a Christian family. Every time they came from church, their mother would make them sit on a coconut log beside their house. She would teach her children the importance and the power of prayers.

“My children, every time you are in trouble make sure you pray. There is power in a prayer,” she insisted. Children adhered to the teachings every time they encountered problems.

One day, their mother took them to the farm. The children worked in the Northern part while their mother was in the Southern part of the farm. When the work had picked and everyone was as busy as bees, a snake attacked the mother. The mother rose up and ran away shouting to the children, “get away! Fierce snake is coming your way!” Seeing the snake, the children immediately went down on their knees while their mother continued running and shouting.

Read the passage below and answer questions 41-50.

Education is very important in life. Those who perform well in education normally have good jobs. They get enough money to keep up their families. It is very true that those pupils who work hard in class perform well in their exams.

One has to work hard beginning from class one. When one reaches class four, the subjects starts to widen. English, for example, begins to be a bit difficult. This should not discourage anybody at all. If one is determined enough, it becomes easy for him or her to pass it. Since all subjects are tested in English apart from Kiswahili, we should be good in English if we want to pass the other subjects. Let it be clear that life without education will be difficult.
