TASK II. READING ALOUD

(10mks)

Read the story below aloud as the teacher listens.

Recycling is very important in our lives because the waste we create is increasing all the time. The rise in population means there are more people on the planet who create more waste. New ways of packaging are being developed. However, many of these products contain materials that are not friendly to the environment. Lifestyle changes like eating fast food, create additional waste that is not recyclable. Recycling helps to decrease the pollution caused by waste. It reduces the need for new raw materials so that the forests can be preserved.

TASK III. READING COMPREHENSION

Read the story below and then answer the following questions. (10mks)

Some insects live and work together in large groups. These insects survive by sharing their home, work and food. They are called social insects. Ants, bees and wasps are examples of such insects.

Ants live together in a nest. They usually build a nest that has many rooms. Each room is used for a different purpose. The queen uses one room to lay eggs. The young ants make silk threads.

Bees live together in a hive. There are four kinds of bees, the queen bee, the male bees, the worker bees and the young bees that stay in the hive. They store the honey in the hive. They also collect nectar from flowers. This nectar is used to make honey.

Wasps live together in a nest. There are three kinds of wasps in a nest: the queen, the workers and the young wasps. The queen lays eggs inside the nest. The workers chew wood to make pulp. The workers also find food for the nest.
